REDS LOSE 24,000 MEN IN THREE DAYS

Communists Continue Their Retreat As UN Army Steps Up Hammer Blows

TOKYO, March 10 — Communist forces retreated northward for the second day today on Korea's west-central front before the hammer blows of 100,000 United Nations troops.

A U.S. Ninth Corps spokesman said the enemy was retreating and put up little resistance against advancing Allied troops. Enemy troops were weakened by the loss of more than 24,000 men in casualties for three days.

Greek units operating with the American First Cavalry Division on the road to the Chinese mountain stronghold of Hongchong gained four miles while other UN forces advanced from one to almost three miles.

A U.S. Eighth Army communiqué said the American 25th Division, moving north to outflank Seoul, gained up to 4,000 yards against light resistance.

The communiqué said other American troops north of Yongdu gained 3,000 yards while British forces to the east of Yongdu advanced 2,000 yards.

The communiqué said that South Korean troops on the east-central front made substantial gains.

Night long exchanges of small arms fire on the east-central front erupted in volcanic action Saturday morning as Allied troops smashed headon at Red units guarding the approaches to Hongchong, Red assembly center in the mountain fastnesses of Central Korea, 22 miles south of the 38th Parallel and 47 miles east-northeast of Seoul.

U.S. Marines in the center of the line above the mid-Korean hub of Hoengsong sent patrols spearing to points within eight miles of Hongchong.

On the west-central front, American 25th Division infantrymen, led by tanks, enlarged their bridgehead north of the Han river after gaining four and a half miles Friday. This bridgehead posed an increasing flanking threat to Red defenders of Seoul.

The veteran U.S. 24th Division withstood four Chinese Red counter-assaults Friday night although about midnight they lost high ground north of Okchon, a Pukhan Valley town 28 miles east of Seoul. The high ground was regained by the Americans in a spirited attack Saturday morning.

On the right flank of the 24th Division, the American First Cavalry entered the crossroads village of Yondongwon, seven and a half miles southwest of Hongchong. The lightning fast mechanized cavalry thrust caught the Reds off guard and the enemy, in full flight, left behind huge stockpiles of rifles, machineguns and mortars.

Farther east the Marines reported they "decimated" a battalion-sized enemy force and advanced despite sporadic bombardment by enemy field guns.

On the east-central front, the American Second and Seventh Divisions and the Republic of Korea Fifth and Seven Divisions were hacking away at enemy positions.

The American Seventh captured the Red mountain stronghold of Taemi Friday. Taemi lies six miles northwest of Pangnim.

The American 25th Division, expanding the Han river bridgehead, made the greatest gains of any Allied unit Friday and the GIs were knocking at the door of Toksori, western Red anchor on the central front.

A task force of 25th Division troops seized a hill two miles east of Toksori and another force dispersed Chinese troops on a sandy island in the Han river two miles south of the town.

In the Ninth Corps area on the west-central front, British troops of the 27th Commonwealth Brigade seized control of the 14-mile long lateral road between Yongdu and Hoengsong.

To the east in the Tenth Corps sector an American spokesman reported the heaviest enemy resistance in some weeks.

He told correspondents: "Beginning yesterday (Friday) the enemy showed no disposition to pull out under heavy attack. Resistance was heavy throughout the zone from a well disposed enemy in dug-in, prepared positions."

The spokesman said the enemy troops were making great- (Continued on Page Two)

Mass Slashes Said To Be Improbable

WASHINGTON, March 10 — The government today is getting ready to roll back some more prices.

Economic Stabilizer Eric Johnston told the nation last night that plans are underway to cut back prices that are "out of line with costs or conceal excessive profits — we don't intend to permit anyone to make a killing out of a public emergency."

The stabilizer also revealed "encouraging" progress toward healing the rift between government and organized labor over the defense program. But labor dozen demands that must be met leaders said they have half a dozen demands that must be met before they rejoin the Wage Stabilization Board.

Johnston warned advocates of wholesale rollbacks that such a policy would cause wide unemployment and drive vital goods from the counters into the black-markets.

Only a few hours before Johnston's speech, Price Controller Michael DiSalle issued an order trimming soap prices one penny a bar and two cents on packaged flakes and cleansers.

Some observers said most of the benefit of the soap price cut would go to the retailers and not to housewives. The opinion was that the retailers have absorbed most of the last six percent price increase and would merely make up their profit margin under the new order.

The price stabilizer asserted however: "We have pushed to the limit to keep housewives from having to pay higher and higher prices for an item so important to the family budget as soap."

"To do this, we had to take action all along the line, from the manufacturer back through the renderer and the packer who produces most of the raw materials used by soap makers."

In effect, DiSalle cancelled a price increase announced by soap manufacturers in mid-January. (Continued on Page Two)

LONDON, March 10 — For the first time in 90 years the "Watlington Flyer" will not be puffing and tooting on its nine-mile haul through rural England.

Senate OKs 18-Draft-UMT As House Ponders Troops

WASHINGTON, March 10 — The draft bill to call 18-year-olds to the colors went to the House with hearty Senate approval today and landed on a powderkeg smouldering with the fight to require congressional approval of U. S. troop commitments to Europe.

Democrats and Republicans in the lower chamber are choosing up sides over a GOP-sponsored plan to veto the control on troop shipments to the new Draft-Universal Military Training legislation.

In Key West, a spokesman for vacationing President Truman said he regards efforts to limit the numerical strength of troops sent to Europe as a severe blow to United States foreign policy.

The Senate, which approved the new service bill by a thumping 79 to five vote yesterday, has thus far received proposals of control on troop movements only in resolution form, which would not have the force of law. Prior to the GOP move, this was the case in the House.

SPEAKER RAYBURN, (D) Tex., and Senate Majority Leader McFarland, (D) Ariz., were quick to predict that the House GOP Policy Committee rider plan will fail.

McFarland declared that the House can "do as it sees fit" but that he did not think the Senate would be "scared" by the House GOP move.

Rayburn said of the Republican idea for a draft amendment: "I don't think the House will go that far."

In addition to lowering the minimum draft age from 19 to 18, the legislation also lengthens the period of service from 21 to 24 months. The bill carries no exemption.

Localite, 33, Loses Rights For Ten Years

A 33-year-old Clinton street man lost his driving rights for 10 years Friday in Pickaway County common pleas court for drunken driving.

He is Ellwood Laveck of 704 Clinton street, arrested Thursday afternoon on East Main street by State Highway Patrolman Clyde Wells.

Judge William D. Radcliff Friday suspended Laveck's driving rights for a period of 10 years, fined the man $10 and costs and sentenced him to 30 days in Pickaway County jail.

The sentence was later suspended in favor of an 18-month probation, based upon condition that Laveck violate neither motor vehicle nor intoxication laws during that period.

Laveck, according to city police records, had been fined once before for driving while drunk and once for being in a physical control of his auto while drunk.

INFLATION CURB SAID AHEAD

Tighter Non-Defense Area Home-Buying Rules Seen

WASHINGTON, March 10 — Government officials are talking of the possibility credit controls on home buying soon will be tightened in a new move to curb inflation.

If such a decision is made, the government would probably call for bigger cash down payments on new houses located in non-defense areas.

Liberalized terms would still prevail on new houses built near defense plants and military installations where housing is urgently needed.

The entire credit situation is under intense review by top federal economic experts and they are expected to report to the White House during the middle of this month.

Out of this report may come a new anti-inflation program restricting bank credit further and requiring greater use of cash in most business deals.

CONSUMERS, TOO, might also have to put up more money in arranging credit purchases on durable goods such as refrigerators, stoves and other home appliances.

Federal Reserve Bank officials, who administer real estate controls, say inflation is still their main worry and the real threat to the nation's economy.

Since lending has been continuing at a high rate, the experts say the board may have to broaden its credit restrictions although there has been "no expression" from the board, itself, on the question.

If new credit controls are ordered, housing production may have to be reduced somewhat below the 850,000 unit goal set by the housing agency.

The National Association of Home Builders has asked the government to ease terms on (Continued on Page Two)

Hogs In Town Are OK-If They're Sanitary

It's all right to keep hogs in Circleville.

But they have to be sanitary. And the owner must obtain a permit.

Applications for permits to keep hogs in Circleville now are being received by Health Commissioner C. O. Leist.

Hog owners have until April Fool's Day to obtain their permits. Leist said:

"Actually, the permits are not limited to hogs. The ordinance they are being issued under lays stress on hogs, but refers to all kinds of livestock."

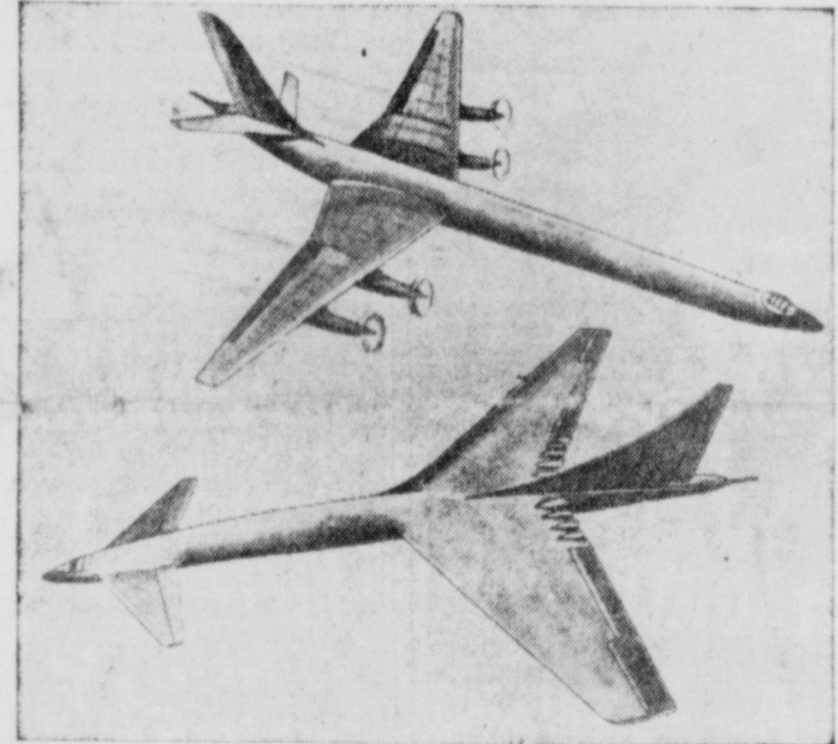

The city health commissioner explained that getting a permit is "not a simple matter of coming in and laying down a dollar."

Application must be made first, "which means they come in and state what they want and give the location of the stock."

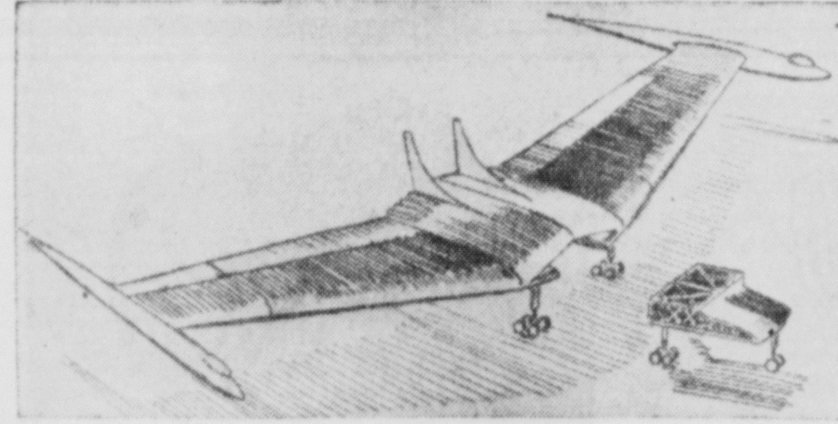

After that there will be an inspection of the premises to see if the requirements of the ordinance are being complied with.

The ordinance written sometime during the early years of the present century, says in part:

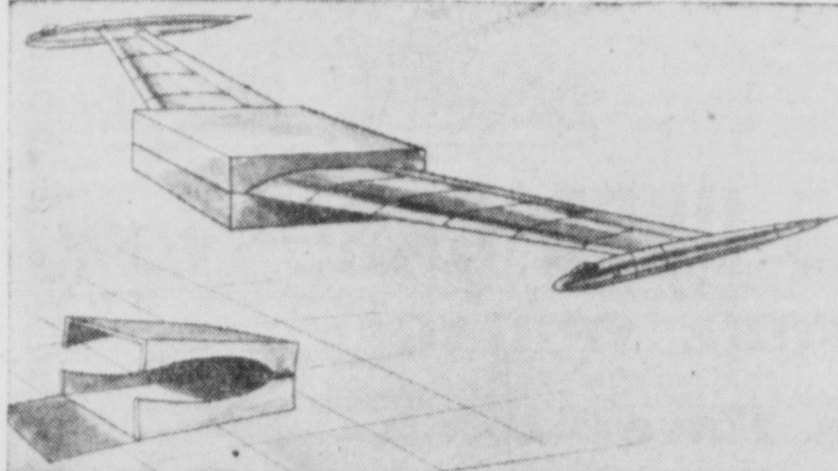

"No person or persons shall be (Continued on Page Two)

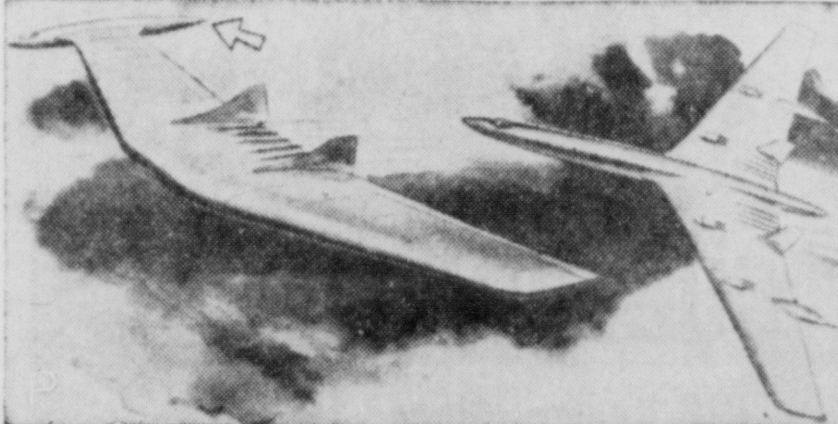

In piston engine bomber (upper), crew is relatively close to power plant. In second type (lower), which aero-dynamic experts believe is sound, crew compartment (in nose) is as far from radioactive power plant (tail) as possible. Wingspan would be 230 feet, it is estimated.

This conception shows how atomic power plant could be detached for maintenance. A principal problem is reducing weight of shield necessary to protect crew from radiation. Power plant would be placed in a vault when plane is idle, is idea. Wingtip nacelles would carry crew.

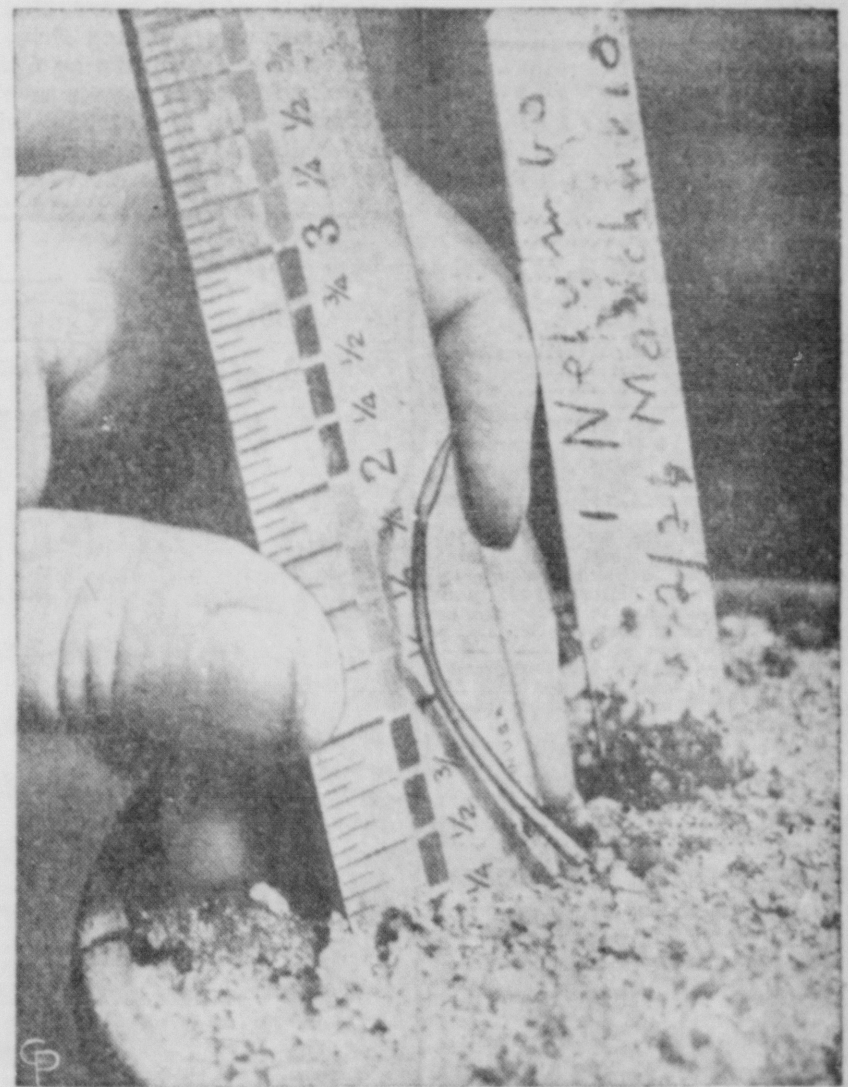

To guard against radioactivity when atomic engine plane is on ground a shield (box, lower), possibly of cement and lead, would cover the power plant. In air a second shield, built around engine itself would do the job, and crew would be in nacelles on wingtips, as shown in sketch.

uary before the general price freeze was ordered.

DiSalle also announced that his office plans to clamp dollar and cent ceilings soon on pork products that will amount to a rollback in many instances. Meats affected include ham, sausage and pork chops.

The price boss also plans to issue orders soon fixing margins for wholesalers and retailers of other canned, packaged and other processed foods. In addition, he is at work on a margin regulation for food manufacturers.

Food prices controls are complicated however by the law exempting food and other farm products from producer-level ceilings until they have reached "parity" prices set as a fair return to the farmers.

Price orders for manufactured goods at both the manufacturer and wholesaler levels are being prepared. The manufacturers' order may be out soon.

Labor spokesmen declared that Labor's return to the wage board is conditioned on acceptance by the administration of what it regards as a "fair" wage ceiling formula.

From the viewpoint of the unions, this would include these five conditions:

Provision for wage ceiling rises each three months as the cost of living goes up; exemption from the ceiling of all " fringe" benefits, including vacations, holidays and night differentials; special safeguards for hardship cases and other "inequities" and sub-standard wage situations; recognition of all provisions of existing work contracts, and inclusion on the wage board of public members with World War II experience.

Farmers Hoping For Greater Buyer Resistance

WASHINGTON, March 10—The major farm organizations have formed an alliance to educate the consuming public on the farmers' view of high food prices.

Five of the national organizations have set up a series of semi-monthly meetings with newsmen at the capital to discuss current topics of interest to farmers and consumers alike.

The purpose of the conferences is to acquaint newsmen with the nation's farm leaders and bring about better understandings of farm problems by the men who write the news.

These farm groups include the American Farm Bureau Federation, the Farmers Union, the Grange, Council of Farmer Cooperatives and the Milk Producers Federation.

A major point brought out by farm leaders in these meetings is that farmers believe that a great deal of the upward pressure on prices of farm foods is due to the consuming public itself.

Prices of meat and other farm foods, farm leaders say, would come down if consumers would refuse to pay the high prices. The leaders hold that farmers themselves—in the interests of anti-inflation—would be happy to see more consumer resistance to current record prices.

Price Parley For County Due Next Thursday

Pickaway County businessmen who need to be brought up to date on new Office of Price Stabilization regulations will get that chance next Thursday evening.

OPS officials said that a four-county meeting will be held in Chillicothe West Fifth Street school auditorium to discuss marginal control regulations. Retailers of durable and soft consumer goods will be directly affected.

Businessmen of Pickaway, Ross, Fayette and Jackson Counties are expected to attend the meeting which will be chaired by R. D. Pinkerton, secretary of Chillicothe Chamber of Commerce, starting at 7:30 p. m.

The Ohio Chamber of Commerce and the Ohio Council of Retail Merchants are sponsoring the meeting jointly with the Columbus OPS district office.

The recent regulation covers retailers of items including wearing apparel, dry goods, furniture, rugs, etc. They are covered by the marginal control method rather than a specific price freeze.

Frank Massaro, newly-appointed chief of the consumers' goods division, and Price Specialist Samuel Rowe of the division will attend the meeting.

Another meeting of the group has been set for 10 a. m. Tuesday in Court-Main restaurant to establish store closing hours in Circleville on Good Friday.

He said members will redistribute the forms among Circleville merchants dealing in wearing apparel, shoes, dry goods, furniture and household goods.

The forms must be filled in and filed by March 29 to enable the OPS to establish marginal price ceilings," Magill said. He added:

"If the forms are not in by March 29, the merchants will not be permitted to offer goods for sale on April 1."

Only merchants dealing in clothing, shoes, dry goods, furniture and household goods are affected, although ceilings are expected to be set for others later. Magill explained that marginal price ceilings control the percentage of markup permitted a merchant.

He said merchants can obtain full answers to questions by contacting Edward F. Wagner, administrator, Office of Price Stabilization, Columbus District, 68 East Gay street, Columbus 5.

Special Organ Numbers Due In First EUB Rites

"Kyrie Eleison" by Gounod will be Organist Lucille Kirkwood's prelude for unified worship in First Evangelical United Brethren church at 9:30 a. m. Sunday.

Other organ numbers will be "Reverie Religieuse" and "Grand Choeur."

"In the Cross of Christ I Glory" and Sweet the Moments, Rich in Blessing, Which Before the Cross I Spend" will be the congregational hymns.

"The Cross—That We Might Have a New Dynamic," with scriptural texts from Galatians 3:13-14 and Acts 1:8, will be the sermon theme.

Of this topic the Rev. Carl Wilson says:

"There is no promise in the Word of God that men may lay hold on power to use it for their purposes. But when, on the contrary, God's power lays hold on man to direct his life into the fulfillment of Divine purpose, that power becomes to him a dynamic.

"Christ died on the cross to provide man with a new dynamic of a fully surrendered life to accomplish the purposes of God."

"Jesus Asserts His Authority" is the Bible lesson to be studied in Church School. Edwin Richardson, superintendent, will direct the school, which is departmentalized with classes for all ages.

Home Builder Class will function as fellowship committee and the church service group for this coming week.

Big things are in the making for a greater Lancaster Camp Ground where thousands converge every Summer in the Fairfield hills and enjoy the well-rounded program afforded at this popular resort.

The programs through almost four score years scintillate with great names, those of lecturers, entertainers, inter-nationally known preachers and evangelists, editors, statesmen, presidents and a host of names have attracted thousands to the huge Camp Ground auditorium which has a seating capacity of 5,000 people.

Groups of many church, civic, fraternal, and farm organizations hold periodic meetings there where facilities are many. Nearly 300 cottages, dormitories, and a hotel and modern cafeteria accommodate the legion who find this spot the answer to convention problems.

Highroads Of Universe

By DR. J. GLOVER JOHNSON
Professor of Religion

"In toil shalt thou eat of it all the days of thy life" is the primeval as well as the Biblical law concerning the existence of man upon the earth. The individual has yet to survive who has not secured the basic necessities of life either through his own effort or the provision of another. Hence, work is the normal primary, and chief activity of man.

The economic life of modern man is far more systematized and complex than that of his earliest human ancestors. Especially since the development of money as a medium of exchange for one's services, man's ambition has been to get as many steps removed as possible from the actual wrestling of a minimal food supply from the raw earth as his total life-occupation.

This changed situation has not come about without certain serious results. In his social experience down through the ages man has developed certain vicious habits of thought and resultant ways of living. In the primitive setting, existence was literally a life-long struggle for mere survival. In the modern scene, this inborn biological drive has for many been ruthlessly reversed by other individuals. Nowadays, for unfortunate millions of human beings existence has become mere survival for life-long struggle, not for themselves but for these others. A much more intelligent and ethical way of living must be found.

Christian Ethics And Economics To Be Surveyed

NEW YORK, Mar. 10—What do Americans think of their own economic system?

In an attempt to answer this question, discussion groups in many cities and a national opinion poll are being launched as part of a three-year study on the relation of Christian ethics to economic life. A psychiatric investigation also will be utilized.

This information was revealed today by A. Dudley Ward, director of studies for the Department of the Church and Economic Life of the National Council of the Churches of Christ in the USA.

Persons in the discussion groups will come up with their answer to such questions as:

1. What are the goals in life which are served by your job or your business activity?

2. What problems (especially of conscience) do you face as you strive to attain your economic goals?

3. How is your job related to the American economic system as you understand it?

Such topics as factors in economic life which lead to emotional conflicts and frustrations and individual attitudes regarding personal responsibility for attainment of individual and social values in economic life will be explored, Ward continued.

An attempt will also be made to analyze the attitudes of people toward work, with particular reference to the Christian concept of vocation—work as a meaningful, constructive aspect of one's life and as a part of God's scheme—by people in connection with their economic activity.

It is hoped, he added, that persons participating in the group discussions will be able to give comprehensive answers to such questions as "what do you expect out of life?", "what would you like to achieve?", and "how could things be better?"

He reported that groups will be organized among labor, management, rural, employed women, and other circles of American economic life.

Following a period of pre-testing now in progress, the Institute of Public Opinion will make up final questions for its poll which will be completed by September. The "pre-test" includes such queries as:

1. How much importance do you place upon material things as contributing to status, reputation, satisfactions, etc.?

2. What benefits derive from or what values are conserved or enhanced by economic security?

3. Do people think there are still relatively unlimited opportunities for economic advancement in America for the individual and/or the community?

4. What liberties do you feel are being curtailed by the increasing role of government?

Following completion of data Mr. Ward and his staff will produce a volume, "The American Economy and the Lives of People," to be published by Harper and Brothers.

Archbishop Joseph E. Ritter will lead a national pilgrimage to Rome for the beatification of Pope Pius X on June 3.

The announcement aroused speculation that Archbishop Ritter would be elevated to the College of Cardinals.

At full strength, the college has 70 members. There are now 51. Appointment of one more American would bring the number of United States cardinals to five.

Archbishop Ritter was appointed to succeed the late Cardinal John Glennon of St. Louis in July, 1946. He took his oath of office as fourth archbishop of St. Louis three months later.

The pilgrimage will sail from New York May 11.

The beatification of an individual is a pontifical declaration that a member of the church deserves to be regarded as residing in heaven due to a saintly life or heroic death. Pope Pius X, the 259th successor of St. Peter, died in 1914.

SMALL BUSINESSES
OF ALL business firms in the United States, a large percentage is small. The number of small business firms decreased during the war, but increased almost 28 percent from 1944 through 1949. Congress had been talking about the problems of small business for a long time before Korea. Since rearmament became a fact, the plight of small business has entered a new phase.

That phase has to do with the allocation of defense contracts and with the shortages of basic supplies of materials which have been funneled into defense production. The Department of Defense defines small business concerns as those which employ fewer than 500 persons. The National Association of Manufacturers, in studies made in November, 1950, reported that 82 percent of its members have 500 employees or less. Only 10 percent have more than 1,000 employees.

There are, of course, thousands of businesses that have far less than 500 workers; in fact, the Department of Commerce has, in the past, defined as "small" manufacturing concerns those with less than 100 employees, wholesale establishments and construction enterprises with net sales of receipts of less than $50,000. Whatever the definition or standard, it is clear from experience that a multitude of small businesses, like millions of individuals, cannot hope to profit from the rearmament program. Their condition will worsen.

Conferences were held in New York to examine this problem, and the Senate small business committee, in a report, has called for prompt integration of small plants into the defense mobilization program. That is but part of the problem, however. The other part is how to keep essential civilian production going, for the United States is neither at war nor engaged in full mobilization.

The second phase is where the problem of essential supplies enters. How to balance supplies between armament and civilian production is baffling. Yet, if this is not worked out, it is certain that a large number of small businesses will go to the wall.

Dane Clark

NEW YORK—Voltaire said a sense of humor is the only thing that keeps intelligent people from hanging themselves, and nobody has opened his mouth more truthfully.

The only fly in the ointment is that people's senses of humor sometimes lean to the grotesque and nothing will save them except setting fire to a barn or throwing their mothers-in-law from the roof.

I think of this now as I ponder the case of a restaurateur whom we shall call Oofy, the backwash of whose aborted sense of humor almost swept him into the East river a few years ago.

Dane Clark, the movie actor just returned from a stretch in England and possibly the busiest television performer in town right now, told me the story of Oofy and Rocky Graziano.

We were cooling our heels in a dark corner of Sardi's in mid-afternoon. Clark, casual in a corduroy jacket, was dead tired from TV rehearsing, but his eyes lighted up as he remembered the story.

"I was up in Stillman's gym one afternoon, doing some scenes for a fight picture—they always have me fighting, in the movies—and for a publicity gimmick, when the shooting was done, Rocky and I sparred a round or two," Clark said.

"He was training for the third Zale fight, the one in which he lost his middleweight title. I remember him asking me how I threw my left. Me! Oh, I fought a little when I was young, but I'm an actor, I'm no pug. He could have busted me in half with a punch."

"When it was over, I told Rocky to come on down to Oofy's for lunch. We both came from the same neighborhood in Brooklyn, and I thought we could reminisce a little. I never been there," says Rocky, a real child of nature. "Sure, let's go."

NOW, OOFY IS A PONDEROUS MAN, and his idea of humor, his publicity-wise idea of saluting you, is to slap you on the back with his ham of a hand and insult you. "Whadya doin' here, ya bum?" he will bellow. "Ya pay ya creditors off yet?"

George E. Sokolsky's
These Days

General George Marshall said in the hearings before Congress:

"As General Eisenhower pointed out in his recent testimony here, the United States forces will constitute only a minor portion of these proposed integrated forces—the major portion being furnished by the Western European nations. This is particularly true in the matter of ground forces."

Then he added:

"To be specific, the Joint Chiefs of Staff have recommended to me, and I have so recommended to the President—and the President has approved—a policy with respect to our forces in Europe which looks to the maintenance by us, in Europe, of approximately six divisions of ground forces."

Roughly this involves about 120,000 men and women. We now have about 250,000 men in Korea. The United States already has two divisions in Europe, with four more to go. If the Western Europeans do not supply an adequate force, is it believable that Western Europe can be defended with fewer men than we are now using in Korea?

Marshall further said:

"In the key position to which he has been named at the request of the nations which make up the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, General Eisenhower will be in a position to insist that all members of the North Atlantic treaty play their full parts in this vital undertaking."

Nowhere is it stated how Eisenhower will "be in a position to insist." In fact, the terms of Eisenhower's employment are not stipulated. Is he employed by the United States? Is he employed by the council set up by the North Atlantic Alliance? Who pays his salary and expenses? Does he take his orders from the Department of Defense of the United States or from the North Atlantic Council?

Marshall said:

"Proportionately, the American contribution will be greater in air and in naval forces than in ground forces, for the greater strength of the United States is in the air and on the sea. Proportionately also, our contribution will be greater in the production of munitions, than in the provision of manpower—for the industrial capacity of the United States is the greatest of any of the member nations of the North Atlantic treaty."

This is in complete agreement with Herbert Hoover, but what is the proportion? If the United States is to provide six divisions of ground troops, how many divisions are to be provided by Great Britain, France and other powers? This we are not told.

Marshall insists that these six divisions are principally for morale purposes—that is, to give the Europeans the climate of "Lafayette, we are here!" So this colloquy occurred between Senator Russell and General Marshall:

"Senator Russell: Do you think that the sending of as many as six divisions to Europe will establish the morale and the will to fight that is essential for the defense of Western Europe in case of attack?"

Finding Relief from Fibrositis

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

INFLAMMATION of the body's connective tissues is known as fibrositis. Its cause is not definitely known but there is evidence that it may be due to a variety of factors, including muscle strain, exposure to chilling and cold, and to infections in the teeth, tonsils, or sinuses. Whatever its cause, the disease once started is a long-continued condition which causes much pain in the affected areas.

Recently, it has been found that many patients afflicted with fibrositis can be kept free of pain by daily massage with ointment containing either ephedrine, ephedrine, or belladonna. The use of ointments containing one or the other of these drugs was studied in a group of 70 patients.

Heat and Massage

The only treatment used in addition to the ointment was the application of heat and massage. When the ointment was rubbed into the tissues, whether by the physician or by the patient himself, the pain-relieving effects were felt within a few minutes, and lasted for several hours at least. Some of the relief could be attributed to the massage as is evidenced by the experience of 20 patients treated with an ointment containing none of these drugs. Relief in these cases was less than that noted by the others, and even such relief as was obtained took longer to appear. Furthermore, the pain returned much more promptly. It did not appear to make any difference which one of the various drugs was employed. All seemed to bring equal relief.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

C. B. S.: My tongue is white around the edges and all cracked and split in the center. What causes this?

Answer: Such a condition may be due to a geographical tongue, for which the cause is not known. There are other causes for disturbances of the tongue, such as a vitamin deficiency, an infection or an allergy or oversensitivity. You should consult a skin specialist concerning your condition so that the exact cause may be found and proper treatment instituted.

SYNOPSIS
Impending war (1812), Rhoda, his malice, his Tory brother, Alex, the unexpected visit of his winsome young niece, Jenet, combine to complicate Quint Darby's life as he pioneers on the Niagara border, across from Canada. The loss of his arm is another handicap. He dreams of building merchant ships. He fears for Jenet's safety here, is greatly alarmed when she openly and ardently admires a handsome half-breed Indian, named Peter Brant. But more and more Quint finds himself turning for escape to this lovely girl. Spies are infesting the country, and Darby's eccentric lodger, one Pettipiece, falls under suspicion. The frontier wonders on which side the Mohawk Indians will fight, if war actually strikes.

CHAPTER ELEVEN
CYRUS CATON came to the table, stood over Quint. "We know where the Mohawks will fight, come war. They hate us! And who can say the Senecas may not be persuaded to join them? That this young walkabout may not be with them now, persuading them? What'll happen to us if we have the one tribe at our faces and the other at our backs? Care to think on that, Darby?" He wagged a finger in Quint's face. "I'm told you know something about it."

"The Mohawks and our Seneca neighbors are a more civilized people than those western tribes. They've gone further than we in education..."

"Education! Pah! They've the same savage blood and they've their grudges. If it is pointed out to them that they can reclaim the lands they lost—and if enough whiskey is toted in to them—the younger chiefs won't listen to old Red Jacket or Cornplanter. And I understand the young Mohawk is glib of tongue."

"I will take everything I possess on the boy's loyalty to his mother's people!"

"So?" Cyrus Caton gave a long glance over the room. "You're very well set up here, Darby. It'd be a pity to risk such a commodious place." He brought his glance back to Quint. "There's another matter of which I must speak—it's known that your brother crossed the river a day or so ago—what business took him into Canada?"

Quint closed his lips on an impulse to tell this man that his brother's business was his own affair. And while he hesitated Jenet came to the door.

She stood there, in some confusion. "Oh, I'm most sorry I intruded! I needed more thread—I did not know anyone was here!"

Cyrus Caton was regarding her with an astonished curiosity. Evidently, thought Quint, word of her had not yet reached his ears.

"This is Mr. Cyrus Caton, of the Buffalo village, Jenet." Quint turned to the other man. "My brother has left his daughter with us until he finds residence to his liking in the village of Newark. He has tired of business and plans to live the rest of his life in leisure. His son is with him and Miss Jenet will join him in a few weeks." Then, to Jenet, "Get your thread, child."

Jenet went to a chest in a corner, took her thread from it and ran from the room.

"A most winsome young lady," observed Caton. Then, with a meaning smile, he added, "But isn't it a little odd that your brother should be willing to expose her to our rougher ways of living, even for the few weeks of which you speak?"

Quint yearned to slap the smile off his face. But he controlled himself, even his voice. "Odd—when I am of close kin of her? And, now if you've finished, I suggest we go to the taproom and enjoy some refreshment."

"Another time. I've others to talk to. I can report back that you will serve on our committee? It's one thing you can do, Darby. The man's eyes rested just for an instant on Quint's empty sleeve.

"You may tell your committee that I am as loyal a citizen of this country as the rest of you and ready to serve it—to the best of my ability. But it'll be in my own way. Goodnight, sir."

With a scarcely audible goodnight in answer, Caton went out through the door. Quint saw his face red with anger. They'd parted enemies, he knew.

He dropped down heavily into his chair, leaned his head in his hands. War? With every fibre in him he rejected the thought. The democracy was too young, too unready, to take up arms again against the English. If the common men, the length and breadth of the land, shouted no to it, wouldn't those parlor statesmen in Washington listen?

There was a light step behind him. Jenet touched his shoulder. "Uncle Quint..." Her voice was low and troubled. "I had to come back—your face when I stood in the door—and why was that man asking about my father's business?"

He would not tell her the real reason. "Curiosity, my dear. No one comes to the frontier with the display that attended your father without..."

Jenet broke in, impatiently. "You are making that up, Uncle Quint! It was more than curiosity. Do you know why my father sold everything and chose to go to live in Canada?"

"I am not in your father's confidence..." began Quint, speaking carefully. Then he looked up at her. "Do you, Jenet—do you know?"

She shook her head. "But I don't believe it is to live in quiet leisure. I haven't believed it from the first. Before he sold Greenlands there was a man came, spent several days there with my father. They were cooking up something. It was after that that father began talking about Newark. And what could he have known of such a place except what that man had told him? And what could that man have known of it—he'd just come from England!"

Quint passed his hand over his forehead. "Suspicion is a very insidious poison, Jenet. Let's not let it in until it is justified." He got to his feet, then. "It's a late hour. Put these troubling thoughts out of your head and get your night's sleep. I've in mind riding over to Mistress Sabrina's tomorrow..."

"I may go with you? But, Uncle Quint, don't please send Becky there at once! She has told me she will show me how to cook over the fire, things such as that, and I have promised to teach her to read and a new way to do her hair."

He patted her cheek. "I will not hurry Becky away," he promised. "Not with such important plans afoot."

That night Quint slept in his office. Never again would he share Rhoda's room. He put his thoughts almost at once on what Jenet had said of her father.

He turned his head wearily. Alex's affairs, whatever they were, were nothing to him...

The next day dawned so bright and warm that the unpleasantness of Caton's visit seemed to Quint a mere bad dream. Caton, he figured, was the kind to seize on the talk of war to strut his own importance. Today he'd go to the Buffalo village and talk to Judge Merriam. There was one who would not build conclusions on rumors he picked up here and there.

He found Jenet in the kitchen making coffee under Becky's instructions. Their interchange of lessons evidently had begun.

Native Of Denmark Heard In Talk Before Women's Group Of Local Church

Colorful Dress Is Exhibited

Wearing a costume in colors traditional to her native Denmark, Mrs. Herbert White of Columbus appeared Friday afternoon before the Women's Association of Presbyterian church.

Introduced by Mrs. Edward Grigg, chairman of Group F, Mrs. White told the combined groups of her visits to Denmark and the social customs of the people.

In describing her dress, which was a gift of her brother in Denmark, the speaker said that "brick red is to commemorate the tile roofs so famous in Denmark; the green stripe is for the lush fields and the blue stripe for the oceans that surround the little peninsula."

Her white wool fringed shawl was exquisitely embroidered with wool thread in a pansy design and the lace trimmed black cap was decorated in the same manner.

Mrs. White, with gay humor, recounted her visits to her native land and said that "the Danes hospitality to Americans necessitates some heavy maneuvering with their ration cards. One of my relatives made the statement that 'we live with one foot in jail.'"

Mrs. White explained, "It is ironical that the very things so abundant in Denmark should have to be rationed due to the need of importing such essentials as coal and steel for industry."

"This means that they must export a great portion of the dairy products which they produce."

With amusing reference to relatives, she illustrated the lack of luxuries which Americans take for granted such as fruits, vegetables, rice, coffee and tea.

Mrs. White remarked that she was grateful to her native land for the custom of "teaching the young people to work; to know the value and satisfaction of work."

She amused her audience with a report of Danish reactions on visiting this country and told with pride that, "for the past 20 years the Danes have celebrated our July 4th with us because America has done so much for the Danes who have migrated to this country."

She spoke with sincere regret of the lack of attendance in the beautiful, centuries old churches which are now state-owned and controlled under the Socialist government.

Mrs. White spoke warmly and enthusiastically of Christian service and concluded her speech with a prayer poem.

In the absence of the president of the Women's Association, the business session was opened by

Kindergarten Signup Reaches Record High

Registrations for Circleville Kindergarten exceeded all expectations Friday when more than 49 children were signed up for next season's pre-school.

The registration was directed by Mrs. Marvin Justice and Mrs. Herbert Sprenger who were assisted by Mrs. William Rickey and Mrs. Russell Ward. It was held in Circleville Memorial Hall for children who will be five years old on or before Nov. 1, 1951.

Following the registration, it was announced by the kindergarten association that there will be both morning and afternoon sessions held next season.

The large registration poses another problem for the group since Mrs. Charles Schneider, the present instructor, is unable to teach both sessions and the teacher committee, Mrs. Robert Adkins and Mrs. Dave Goldschmidt, must find another teacher for the coming year.

According to Mrs. Justice, the association feels that the unexpected increase in the kindergarten registrants is due to "the reading readiness program which teaches the child to read, write and count in preparation for the public schools."

BPW Club Hears Article Honoring Late Member

Miss Clara Southward presented an article in memorial to Miss Charlotte McEwing, a deceased former member of the Business and Professional Women's Club, at their meeting Thursday evening.

Also featured at the meeting held in Franklin Inn was a paper written and read by Miss Elma Rains entitled, "You Make Your Job."

According to Miss Rains, "Many phases enter in making a success of one's job."

Miss Rains listed personality, good manners, good grooming, speech and consideration of others as factors which enter into success or failure on a job.

In conclusion she said that "success is not handed out, but is achieved by hard work."

At the business session it was announced that Easter Seals had been mailed out by the club which is sponsoring the Ohio Society for Crippled Children in Pickaway County.

Volunteers were asked to help with a project being sponsored by Pickaway County Association of Women's Clubs of which the BPW is a member.

COOKBOOK OF THE WEEK
From the Collection of 24 of the World's Greatest Cookbooks
SPONSORED BY THIS NEWSPAPER

A good cookie recipe can be varied so effectively, both in appearance and flavor, that it is well worth exploring the possibilities of a basic recipe and settle on one or two good ones to help keep the cookie jar full.

For all sorts of delicious recipes and innumerable variations and suggestions you should have The Cookie Book, seventh in the Culinary Arts Institute series of 24 beautifully illustrated cookbooks available to readers of The Circleville Herald.

Here is a delicious recipe from the Cookie Book with some suggestions you might use for variety:

FOUNDATION SUGAR COOKIES
1 cup shortening
2 cups sugar
6 tablespoons milk
2 teaspoons vanilla
3 eggs, beaten
5/2 cups cake flour
1 teaspoon salt
3 teaspoons baking powder

Cream shortening, add sugar gradually and cream well. Add milk and vanilla to beaten eggs. Sift all dry ingredients together and add alternately with liquid ingredients to creamed mixture. Chill. Roll out small portions of dough at a time to 1/4 inch thickness on a floured pastry cloth. Keep remaining dough in the refrigerator and save all scraps after cutting for the final rolling so that the dough does not become overworked. Bake in a moderate oven (375 deg. F.) 15 minutes. Makes 168 cookies 2-inch diameter.

CINNAMON—Sprinkle cinnamon and sugar over the top of the unbaked cutouts.

CARAWAY—Sprinkle tops of the unbaked cutouts with caraway seed and sugar.

COCONUT—Add 1 cup shredded coconut to the foundation dough.

JELLY—Place teaspoon of tart jelly on top of unbaked cutouts. For a fancier cookie, roll the dough very thin and cut with a round cutter. Place jelly on top of 1 cookie and cover with a second cookie from which a tiny round center has been cut.

LEMON—Add to dough 2 teaspoons lemon extract, omit vanilla. Decorate unbaked cutouts with bits of candied cherry and lemon peel.

SPICE—Add to dough 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1/2 teaspoon nutmeg and 1/4 teaspoon cloves. Sprinkle with sugar before baking.

Everything you might want to know about the making of cookies is covered in the Cookie Book. Step by step instructions show you how to make the more involved types of cookies and many excellent preparations and baking hints are contained in this versatile little volume. All you need do to obtain your copy of the Cookie Book is to present 15 cents to your independent grocery in Circleville.

Up-To-The-Minute Tips To Be Plentiful In 1951 Circleville Cooking School

Bringing local homemakers up-to-the-minute tips on how to make housekeeping and cooking easier and more fun, the 1951 Circleville Cooking School will be held March 27, 28 and 29. Sessions will begin at 8 p. m. each day in Memorial Hall.

Return of the popular cooking school was assured after arrangements were completed by representatives of the Ohio Fuel Gas Co., The Circleville Herald and progressive local merchants.

The food institute attracted nearly 3,000 persons at the three-day school held here last year.

Sponsors of the food institute promise homemakers a cooking school complete in every detail. "Show effects" will again be featured, with special costumes, stage decorations and props planned to make each day's performance enjoyable as well as instructional.

A beautiful gas kitchen will be installed on-stage for the food show. It will offer suggested color schemes worked out by kitchen designers of the gas company. Many housewives here will recall the "Rose Garden" kitchen featured last year.

"Magic mirrors," which give the audience a full view of everything being done on stage, will be used. The food lecturer will wear a special lapel microphone connected to a public address system.

In answer to popular demand, a special invitation has been extended to men of the community this year. Previously, the shows have been open to men but many hesitated to attend. Admission will be free and many gifts will be available to guests without cost or obligation.

The entertaining team which conducted last year's institute here will return for this year's show. Miss Enid Parrett, food specialist, will be the lecturer. Lending a man's touch and high degree of humor will be Fred Barthelmas, who is manager for the traveling unit.

Also assisting will be Miss Shirley Burns, who acts as "Betty Newton" for the gas company here, and Dan McClain, manager of the gas company's local office.

The following merchants are cooperating with The Circleville Herald and the gas company in the presentation of the popular cooking school:

Harpster and Yost, Loveless Electric, Pettits Appliance Store, Boyds, Inc., Mason Furniture Store, Griffith Floorcovering, Pickaway Dairy Co-op., Funk's Grocery, Lindsey Bakery, Kochheiser Hardware, Pickaway Arms, Blue Ribbon Dairy, L. M. Butch Co., Hoover Music, Circleville Lumber, Brehmer Greenhouses, Coca Cola Bottling Co.

Homemakers interested in learning the latest tips on food preparation and in spending three fun-filled days getting them are urged to reserve the dates for the food show. They are March 27, 28 and 29—8 p. m. each day.

Wave Learning To Pack Powder Puff Navy Way

Fann C. Kent, seaman recruit, Waves, USN, sister of Mrs. Wilison H. Leist of 360 Watt street, Circleville, is learning to pack her powder puff in a sea bag.

A recent U. S. Navy recruit, she has taken the plunge from civilian to military life and is undergoing training at the U. S. Naval Training Center, Great Lakes, Ill.

Although not taught such strictly nautical subjects as signaling and navigation, the Wave recruit does learn ship and aircraft recognition, naval history, and some of the more subtle facts of a sailor's life; that floors

The meeting was opened with group singing and Mrs. Ben Walker using the "Resurrection" as the devotional theme.

At the business session it was decided to sponsor a bake sale and give a donation to the Red Cross.

Mrs. Isham presented a program of music and readings by Mrs. E. R. Brooks, Mrs. Harold Fee, Mrs. Raymond Hott, and Sophia Hoover.

During the social hour refreshments were served by the hostesses.

Sokolosky's

These Days

"Secretary Marshall: It (six divisions) is a key stone, a very essential unit there, but it is significant of our purpose, our intentions, of our will to do what we properly can for strengthening the defense of Western Europe against a possible attack, and to deter that attack."

"Senator Russell: You do not, then, think it is a hopeless task to defend Western Europe from aggression?"

"Secretary Marshall: No, sir, I do not."

The colloquy between Russell and Marshall finally landed into a morass, for it seems that Marshall wants us to have ground troops in Europe to defend the United States, but he did not say how having ground troops in Europe would safeguard the United States from being bombed in global war per se from a base, say, at Narvik.

The gist of it all is in this colloquy:

"Senator Byrd: I have been told by a very high military authority that there would be a minimum of two to three million trained troops that would be necessary to be effective in resistance of Russia. I am not speaking of our troops but the combined forces."

"Secretary Marshall: I would say to that that you would have to have some qualifications as to time and other factors that it would be a highly hypothetical question. We have no plans for additional units at the present time."

This is an astonishingly confused business as I read the myraid pages of testimony. The record does not make it crystal clear why we are sending ground troops to Europe except for morale—which is an undefinable term for uncertain purposes.

Williams OKs
Title Defense

NEW YORK, March 10—Ike Williams, reluctant king of the lightweights, agreed today to risk his championship for the first time since December, 1949, in a Madison Square Garden 15-round bout on May 11.

Williams will have his choice of five opponents—Art Aragon of Los Angeles, Percy Basset of Philadelphia, Jimmy Carter of New York, John L. Davis of Oakland, Cal., or Del Flanagan of St. Paul.

Meanwhile, Ike's scheduled non-title bout with Fitzie Pruden was put back one week until March 23 when the champion reported he has a heavy cold.

Fail As Bucks Face Swim Meet

MINNEAPOLIS, March 10—

One world record and two conference marks fell by the wayside here last night as Ohio State moved toward a successful defense of its Big Ten swimming championship.

The world mark was established by Buckeye Jackie Taylor in the 200-yard backstroke, a new event in the conference championships this winter.

Taylor covered the distance in 2:08.7.

The two conference marks were set by Ohio State with a 327.5 in the 400-yard free style relay and by Jack Rebney of Minnesota in the 50-yard dash.

Ohio State now has a grand total of 68 points against Michigan State's 39. Michigan has 16, followed by Iowa, Indiana, Minnesota and Purdue with 10 each.

Rebney's time broke the record twice at 22.9 and 22.8 in the preliminaries before finally finishing second to Clarke Choles of Michigan State in the finals.

Final events will be held today.

MARYSVILLE WINS, 61-47

Amazing Pirates Settle For Consolation Honors

Pickaway's amazing Pirate basketball team was dumped from the finals of the district B tournament in Westerville Friday night with a 61-47 loss to Marysville.

Up from the ranks in one of the most colorful displays of "darkhorsing" seen in the last few years, the Pirates were outclassed by the powerful Marysville aggregation in Friday's finale.

Pickaway Coach Bob Seward Saturday said:

"We don't feel bad about losing. The boys gave it everything they had, but Marysville is a good ball club."

The Pirates during the regular season's activities this year were of average material, not much height and losing as many as they won.

Ending the season with a double-overtime victory over Atlanta, however, the Pirates assumed the role of "tournament team" and proceeded to upset two favorites in the county tournament before settling for second place honors.

GOING INTO the district B contest, Pickaway opened strongly with a victory over Uca, followed through with a win over Newark St. Francis and entered the finals via an upset win over highly favored Canal Winchester cagers, who had earlier handily beaten the then undefeated Mt. Sterling ball club.

In Friday's finals match in the district test, Pickaway stayed with the powerful Marysville "5" in the first frame although faltering badly in the second canto. Marysville roared into a 16-10 advantage over the Pirates to open the title contest, while smothering Pickaway attempts to score in the second stanza to double the score over the locals by a 34-17 count.

Maintaining its slam-bang pace, Marysville chalked up a comfortable 49-28 margin in the third period before ending the contest with the 61-47 advantage for the Class B co-championship honors.

Bill Corder of Marysville was the big gun for the champs in the tilt with a total of 22 points, while Pickaway successfully held down previous high scorer Buddy Hoffman to only 16 markers. Vic Pontius and Frank Rhoads tied for scoring laurels on the Pirate quintet in the fracas with 10 points each, while Dale McAfee, sharpshooting Pirate forward, was held down to only one basket, although the effort cost Marysville seven points via the charity toss route.

Pickaway was awarded a runner-up trophy following the title tilt, along with silver medals for each of the team members.

HANGING UP their basketball togs Saturday, the Pirates are looking ahead to their annual basketball banquet, tentatively scheduled for March 21.

Meanwhile, as Marysville advanced into the regionals in Dayton via its win over the locals, Ashley and Marion St. Mary's will battle in Westerville at 8:15 p. m. Saturday for the other co-championship title and the other regionals berth.

In Class A competition, Columbus East, mentored by Coach Paul "Bucky" Walters, former Circleville high school star athlete, won easily over Grandview Friday night to advance into the "A" finals on a 57-40 count.

Walters' East aggregation is slated to meet Columbus Central Saturday night for the Class A tourney title and a berth into the regional tournament in Toledo.

Summary of Pickaway's loss in the Class B finals to Marysville is as follows, with player's name, number of field goals, free throws and total points listed in that order:

PICKAWAY — Hardin 3-2-8; McAfee 1-7-9; Pontius 5-0-10; F. Rhoads 4-2-10; Evans 1-0-2; D. Rhoads 1-0-2; Patrick 0-0-0; Adams 0-0-0. Totals 15-11-41.

Free throws missed, 10; personal fouls, 24.

Ohio's schoolboy basketball teams, aspiring for Class A and B crowns, Saturday night ended a bruising race for regional berths by struggling through final district competition.

At least three "A" and "B" squads survived final district battles Friday night in action which was noteworthy for the emergence of defending "A" champion Springfield, the pairing off of top notch "A" crown contender Hamilton and undefeated Roger Bacon and the survival of "B" teams Corning and unbeaten Fort Recovery.

IN KENT, (19-1) Barberton slashed Akron South 60-38 and d Coventry dumped Akron St. Vincent 53-44 to end up finalists while in Toledo, (22-2) Mansfield claimed a berth in regional play by stopping (15-4) Toledo Central Catholic 64-58.

In "B" play in Fremont, (24-2) Grand Rapids beat Castalia 72-35 to emerge the district's lone team.

Undefeated Fort Recovery (19-0) halted Hoaglin-Jackson 62-44 to become a finalist in the four-team regional in Toledo. Corning added its 25th victory to its single loss by dumping Shawnee 51-45 and ending district play in Athens.

Highlight of Saturday night's action will be centered about Cincinnati and Troy. In the Queen City, top-seeded Hamilton meets undefeated Roger Bacon in final district play and the winner will go to the regional in Troy.

Meanwhile in Troy tonight, Defending State Champion Springfield (14-5) battles West Milton (15-1) in another finale.

Dayton Stivers, (16-4) which threw back Dayton Dunbar 42-36, ends district "A" play in Dayton by dueling Dayton Roosevelt — victors 52-41 over Lebanon.

Canton Timken (13-8) is matched against (13-6) Canton McKinley after both teams knocked off a pair of teams in semifinal play in Canton. Timken eliminated Massillon 58-46 as McKinley put away Alliance 53-43.

YOUNGSTOWN RAYEN (10-11), which spanked Boardman 47-39 in Youngstown, meets Youngstown Girard (21-2) which torpedoed Youngstown East 54-31 in semifinal play.

In Euclid, where final play begins Saturday night, Collingwood edged Ashtabula 34-33 as Euclid did the same 49-48 to Cleveland Heights.

Martins Ferry (19-4) ends district play in Steubenville with East Liverpool (19-4) while undefeated Chillicothe (18-0) closes activity in Athens with Portsmouth (16-3).

Class B warfare in Waverly places Chesapeake (22-5) at odds with Ironton St. Joseph (18-3). Ironton smashed Beaver 95-70 as Chesapeake managed a 45-44 win over stubborn Lucasville.

Sulphur Springs (25-1) will meet Leesville (24-2) in final play in Bucyrus and the get-together brings them at odds for the fourth time this season. Springs edged North Robinson 67-64 in semifinals and Leesville sank Lucas 59-32.

Four other teams were eliminated in Xenia and Springfield. Beaver Creek beat Wayne 48-41 and Blanchester, in two overtime, halted Monroe 56-52 in Xenia. In Springfield, Olive Branch thrashed Newton 83-51 as West Mansfield stopped Arcanum 44-35.

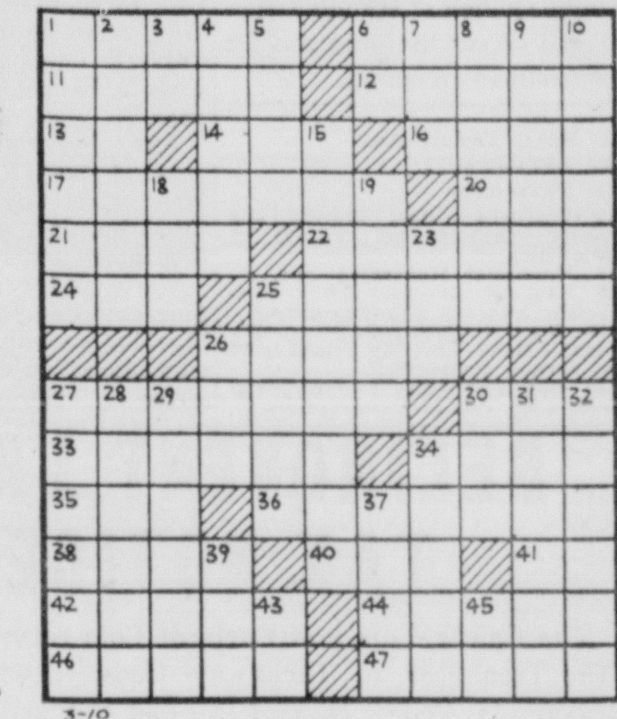

Front-running undefeated Deshler will try to put the skids on Ottoville in Defiance Saturday night for a spot in the Toledo regional while mighty mite Walnut Creek will try to do the same to Belmont in Dover.

Seven mile tangles with Lockland Wayne in Cincinnati final district play while in Kent, Sebring wards off Cortland, Columbiana duels with Waynesburg and Greenford goes to war with Orange.

Pirate Matmen Suffer 23-20 Loss In Meet

Pickaway Pirates wrestlers were handed a narrow 23-20 defeat Friday afternoon in an 11-match meet against invading Powell high school matmen.

Pirate wrestlers accounted for four of the five pins registered in the meet, although losing out in the meet finals by virtue of decisions.

Earning pins for Pickaway were Elmer Winner in the 120-pound class; Bob Pennington in the 127-pound class; Tom Sharrett in the 103-pound class; and Ray Strawser in the 138 pound class.

Losing by a pin in the meet for Pickaway was Bob Stevens, 112-pounder, who was pitted against a 120-pound opponent.

Pirate matmen who were defeated in the test were John Anderson, Ned Riffle, Richard Harris, Herschel Brumfield, Dave Mosley and Art Searles.

The match between Searles, a 150-pounder, and a 175-pounder from Powell was the deciding factor of the meet. Searles, who had never wrestled before, was defeated by his heavier foe.

A return match at Powell will be held by the Pirate matmen March 21.

Former Local Kegler Enters National Match

A former Circleville man has earned the right to represent Columbus in a national bowling tournament this month in Cleveland.

He is Lloyd Leasure, former Circleville Purina Mill worker, who this week carded an 872-pin total in four games to earn the crack at the nationals.

Partner for Leasure in the Cleveland rollofs, slated to begin Tuesday and last through April 1, is Hube Seitz of Columbus, who carded an 848 for his four games.

Leasure, who began bowling on the local lanes, has become one of the capital city's classiest keglers in the last few years, boasting a 193-pin average and representing some of the best teams in the Columbus circuit.

In qualifying with Seitz for entry in the nationals, Leasure rolled games of 222, 213, 201 and 236. Seitz carded games of 231, 236, 200 and 181.

California Entry Eyed In Derby

Rough'n Tumble May Wear Roses

NEW YORK, March 10—It looks as though California is going to have another horse to follow in the footsteps of Your Host in the Kentucky Derby this Spring. Only he may run a bit faster and further, even though Bill Goetz' colt with the four white stockings gave it a brisk hustle.

This new "Californian" will have come out of the Sunshine State by the somewhat roundabout way of Miami, Minneapolis and Lexington, Ky. Still, if he wears the roses on May 5, it will be considered as something of a California victory.

Even in defeat no horse did more to help build nationwide interest in last year's Derby than the Louis B. Mayer bred, Goetz-owned Your Host. After all, so many native sons are native by way of Minneapolis and points east; that there is no reason why a horse shouldn't also be adopted by the Californians.

If the pleasant and popular Gov. Lawrence Weatherby of Kentucky should present the gold cup to Mr. and Mrs. Harold Genter, the owners of Rough'n Tumble, it will be the climax of another of those Cinderella-like stories that happen so often in racing.

INDEED, IT MIGHT be said, without stringing a particularly long bow, that Genter got touted onto his Derby horse in Miami some four or five Winters back. A manufacturer of washing machines in Minneapolis, Genter spent his Winter vacations in Florida and, like so many others, occasionally went to the races. Both he and his wife enjoyed the sport. But at the beginning had no more idea of ever owning a horse than any other casual racegoers.

Since they were newcomers and didn't know many people around the tracks, the Genter's usually were alone on their visits. Which may have been what encouraged some tout to think that they might be prospects.

In any case, one or more of that gentry got hold of their name and address and started bombarding them with their silly "literature" of fixed races, stable info, jockeys' tips, etc.

Even if his knowledge of racing was limited, Genter was too smart a businessman not to see through that sort of eyewash. The obvious answer always being, of course: "If it's such a sure thing, why don't you bet it yourself?"

But Genter didn't just file this trash in his wastebasket and forget it. He talked it over with his wife and they agreed that racing couldn't continue to exist if it was that sort of business.

THUS THEY MADE a point of meeting some racing people at the Florida tracks and a dit wasn't long before they both were so interested that they were talking about buying a few horses for themselves.

They commissioned the veteran trainer, Kirby Ramsey, to buy a modest-priced yearling or so for them in Kentucky. One of those that Ramsey saw that he liked was Rough'n Tumble, a well-named colt by the stallion Free For All and out of the mare Roused.
